Percutaneous Stellate Ganglion Block (PSGB): Training Programme and Registration instructions

THE MISSION

Percutaneous Stellate Ganglion Block, a known technique for antalgic purposes, is also making its way for anti-arrhythmic purposes in patients with arrhythmic storm refractory to standard therapy. The aim of this theory-practice course is to disseminate a safe and effective technique to improve the prognosis of a potentially fatal condition.

SPECIFIC COURSE GOALS

The participant at the end of the course will have learned:

- ✓ How to conventionally define refractory arrhythmic storm
- ✓ Clinical indications for percutaneous stellate ganglion block
- ✓ Different techniques (anatomical and echo-guided) to perform a percutaneous stellate ganglion block
- ✓ How to recognize and manage possible (rare) complications

TOTAL PARTICIPANTS N. 25 attendees

COURSE TARGET AUDIENCE

The course is mainly addressed to:

Cardiologists, Intensive Care Providers, Emergency Physicians.

COURSE CERTIFICATION

Participants will receive, by e-mail, a Certificate of participation.
